

SUMMER SCHOOL

PRESS RELEASE

EntreHubs

The ENTREHUBS project has launched an Online Summer School offering students the opportunity to participate in real-world projects and develop their entrepreneurial skills. This summer school aims for students to create value in different sectors and interact directly with the business world. Participants will gain hands-on experience in developing entrepreneurial projects, building business models and creating social impact.

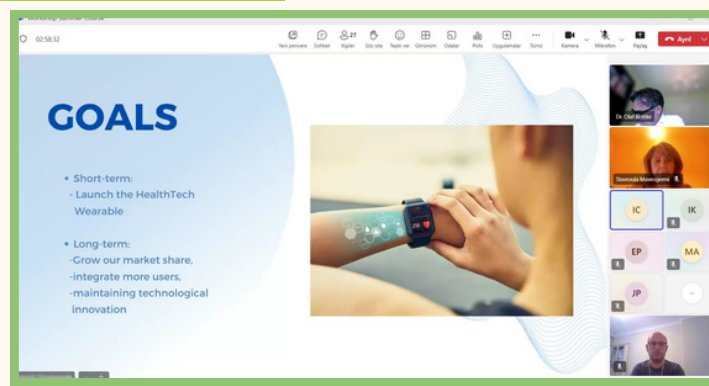

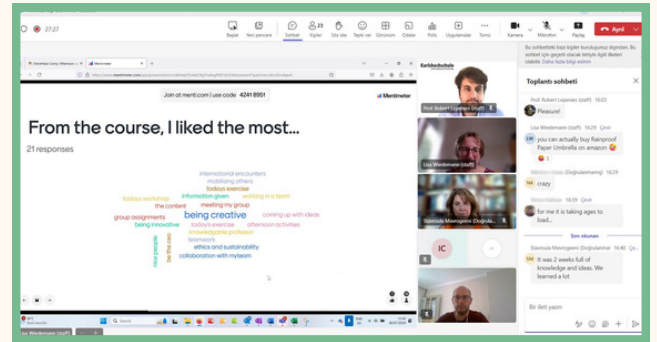

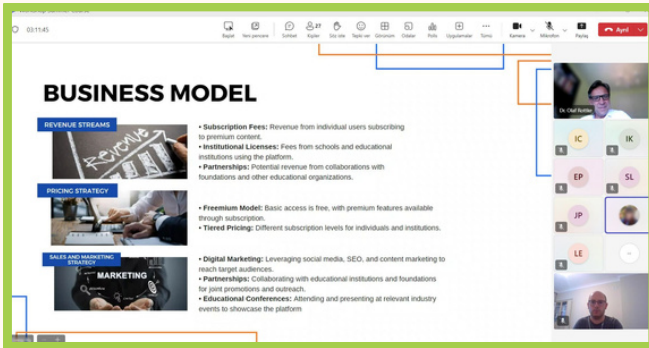

ONLINE SUMMER SCHOOL

By offering an online learning environment, the Summer School enabled students from different countries and disciplines to collaborate. With the idea that entrepreneurship education should not be limited to business and economics faculties, students from different disciplines such as engineering, social sciences and arts also participated in the program and generated new ideas. Throughout the summer school, students collaborated with businesses and took part in projects to develop solutions for various needs of society.

Through online lectures, workshops and mentor-supported projects, students had the opportunity to take an active role in the business world. At the end of the summer school, successful students had the opportunity to present their projects on an international platform and meet potential investors.
